THAT OLD SCOUNDREL DEATH
A Dan Rhodes Mystery
Bill Crider

ANTHONY AWARD-WINNING AUTHOR

"Crider (1941–2018) created a completely plausible fictional sleuth with a welcome sense of humor . . . fans will miss him."

— Publishers Weekly

When a man is run off the road by a thug, Sheriff Dan Rhodes stops to help. The grateful victim, Cal Stinson, is on his way to a nearby town to visit the old school building before it's torn down. The next day, Cal turns up dead. Sheriff Rhodes is beginning to wonder if retirement is as good as it sounds.

THE SCENT OF MURDER
Kylie Logan

FIRST IN A NEW SERIES

"The debut in a new series by the prolific Logan has shoals of red herrings and a nice touch of romance." — Kirkus Reviews

The way Jazz Ramsey figures it, life is pretty good. At thirty-five, she owns her own home in Cleveland, likes her job, and loves volunteering as a cadaver dog handler. But when a dog she's training unexpectedly signals a find, Jazz is stunned to see a familiar face on the body.

THE SO BLUE MARBLE
Dorothy B. Hughes

AN MWA GRAND MASTER

"The debut . . . will suck you in even as it makes you keep asking, 'Did I just read that?'" — starred, Kirkus Reviews

Drenched in the glamour and luxury of the New York elite, The So Blue Marble is a perfect Art Deco suspense novel in which nothing is as it seems. While different in style from her later books, Hughes' debut highlights the poetic language and the psychology of fear for which she became known.

A LIBRARYREADS PICK

Ten years after her teenage daughter disappears, a woman crosses paths with a charming single father whose young child feels eerily familiar. The unanswered questions she's tried so hard to put to rest begin to haunt Laurel anew. Did Ellie really run away from home, as the police suspected, or was there a more sinister reason for her disappearance? And why does his daughter remind Laurel so viscerally of her own missing girl?
