DELAY IN ACTING ON HIDE-OUT 'TIP'
Mail gang missed at farm by 8 hours

RIVIERA SEARCH FOR MASTER MIND
A HERDSMAN'S "tip" led police yesterday to the hide-out of the Great Train Robbery gang, and the herdsman claimed last night that he first telephoned the police on Monday morning and had to wait 24 hours before action was taken.

By the time the police arrived on the scene, the gang had fled. They are believed to have left at 15.15 and the police apparently missed them by eight hours.

The hide-out was isolated Leathersdale Farm, near Oakley, Bucks, about 20 miles from the scene of last Thursday's mail van raid in which £2,500 was taken. The farm is half a mile from a disused airfield.

Police found the place unoccupied. There were discarded mahglins but no men. A letter to Lord Rovers believed to have been used in the raid was found in a wood.

WINDSORS BLACKED OUT
The herdsman who said he telephoned the police in John Mikes, 32, said last night: "My suspicions were aroused by the fact that all the mahglins were blacked out, and a motor keeper standing in an outbuilding was covered by a tarpaulin, with only the yellow headlight showing. A piece of new rope was lying beside the door of the east wing outside."

A Buckinghamshire Police spokesman said last night that the "tip" received from Mikes was one of "handfuls and handfuls" from the public to whom appeals for help had been made. All had to be dealt with as quickly as possible.

Earlier, a police spokesman said: "We will literally take the breadbasket to pieces and take at least three days to do this."

FLYING SQUAD'S LONDON VISITS
Last night all available Flying Squad men visited addresses in many parts of London. At their reports came in, the SOE, Det. Sup. Cummings, head of the C.I.D.

Further details, detectives said yesterday, were being telephoned to London.

MAILBAGS, BUT NO CASH
From GUY RAPP and R. K. JERNIGEN
I T was revealed late last night that the farmhouse hide-out near Oakley, Bucks, used by last Thursday's Great Train Robbery gang was detected by John Mikes, 32, a herdsman. He is employed on a farm adjoining the land leading to Leathersdale Farm.

The hide-out is on the Thames- Brenton Road, about 20 miles from a London suburb. The gang had already been seen there and were believed to be using it but capable of taking flight with ease.

Police were able to form an accurate description of the gang in the past few days.

SUSPICION AROUSED
"At about half past eleven, yesterday evening, the herdsman ran back to the farm and said the police had been telephoned to the farm," a police spokesman said yesterday.

His oracular statement, he said, was almost certainly the last words of the finger on the map. The police had never heard of a herdsman in the area but the police spokesman said last night that the police would have been tipped off by the herdsman.

Police were on the scene of the hide-out when the gang was caught, the spokesman said.

FILE:倖存者

DETECTIVES' TOURIST POSE
NICE, France, Thursday
FOUR tourists were received by the police yesterday for their part in the escape of the Great Train Robbery gang from the hide-out near Oakley, Bucks. The tourists, all believed to be members of the gang, were captured on the train which they used to escape.

The tourists arrived at a station in the town of Nice and were arrested by the police, who said they were members of the gang. They were then taken to the police station where they were questioned by the detectives.

The police said they were searching the town for other members of the gang.

LONDON BUS STRIKE OFF
NINE-HOUR MEETING
Daily Telegraph Report
A meeting of the London Bus Strike Committee was held yesterday to discuss the situation and decide on the next course of action.

The meeting was attended by representatives of all the bus companies involved in the strike, as well as trade union officials and government representatives.

It was agreed that the strike should continue for at least another nine hours, and that the companies would be given 24 hours to reach a settlement.

LONDON BUS STRIKE OFF

LATE NEWS
BRITISH WOMAN DIES ON TOUR
With the growing popularity of foreign travel, British women are increasingly taking up the opportunity to visit countries such as Spain and Italy. However, as the number of British tourists continues to grow, so too does the risk of dangerous situations.

A British woman died on a recent tour to Spain after falling ill with a serious infection. The woman, who was on a guided tour of the country, was taken to hospital but passed away shortly after.

CANTWELL SENT OFF
CANTWELL sent off early for the West Indies after a meeting with the manager of the country's cricket team. The manager informed the player that he would be returning home immediately due to a number of serious disciplinary issues.

The player was earlier accused of making threats and causing a disturbance at a local pub.

LATE NEWS
BRITISH WOMAN DIES ON TOUR

Even offers to wash up.....

In a LEISURE SINK
Little girls-like mother-used a Leisure Sink in its clean, bright, lasting beauty——... in deep money... in... simple drain board spaces. Custom-designed. Sinks are many, various, sizes and shapes. From 15 inches to more than 4 feet. From 6 to 15. On the five-in-a-line fractional models. From 12 to 20. (Prices extra). Leisure California, in charge about...