The text below is from the Papers of General Hans von Seeckt, 1866-1936 collection description.

Generaloberst Hans von Seeckt was Chief of Staff of the army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen during World War I. In that capacity he had a leading part in planning the Central Powers' breakthrough of the Russian Front in 1915 and the conquest of Serbia in the latter part of that year. At various times he served on military missions to Turkey and China. After World War I, as military head of the Reichswehr, he was considered the organizer and "father" of the army of the German Republic. This collection of von Seeckt's private and official papers consists, in general, of correspondence, reports, diaries, manuscript articles, newspaper clippings, maps, and some genealogical materials. Topics range from von Seeckt's ancestral background, through his educational and army career, his travels abroad, his part in World War I, and his service as head of the Reichswehr to his membership on the joint Anglo-German-French Mixed Committee on war graves and his death in 1936.

The materials reproduced in this collection consist of letters and other papers of Generaloberst Hans von Seeckt, prominent German military strategist of World War I. The folders containing these documents are stamped "Heeresarchiv Potsdam," which institution was formerly the custodian of the collection. Originally the Heeresarchiv (Army Archives) was a part of the Reichsarchiv (German National Archives); but in 1936 it was separated from the Reichsarchiv, and all military records that were then in the legal custody of the Reichsarchiv were transferred to that of the Heeresarchiv. As a result of military operations in World War II this collection came into the possession of the U.S. Army. In 1947 the War Department transferred custody of them to the National Archives of the United States where they constitute part of a body of records designated as Record Group 242, World War II Collection of Seized Enemy Records.

Stücke 11, 12, 262, 268, 272, 273, and 275-277, are not known to exist.
