

China and the Modern World: Hong Kong, Britain and China 1841–1951

中國與現代世界：香港、英國與中國

China and the Modern World: Hong Kong, Britain and China 1841–1951 presents a collection of British government documents on colonial Hong Kong, spanning a period of over a century. The workings of this small but strategically important territory are offered here digitally for the first time for researchers and scholars to explore a wide range of topics covering municipal administration and public works of the colonial government to the international politics of East Asia.

Various source media. China and the Modern World: Hong Kong, Britain and China 1841–1951

HONG KONG

Papers relative to the MUI-TSAI QUESTION.

Issued by the Secretary of State for the Colonies
Parliament by Command of His Majesty,
November, 1929.

LONDON:
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY HIS MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE, bought directly from H.M. STATIONERY OFFICE at the following address:
Central House, Finsbury, E.C.2.

ABOUT THE ARCHIVE

This collection of British Colonial office correspondence relates to Hong Kong as a British colony between 1841 and 1951, and provides detailed information on the political, military, social, economic, and external development of Hong Kong. It also sheds light on the British Empire in Asia, China's transformation from empire to republic, mainland China-Hong Kong relations, and the international politics of East Asia.

The archive provides the essential reference material for the research on the history of Hong Kong in the context of modern China and the British Empire in Asia from the inception of this British colony in the 1840s to the early 1950s immediately after the founding of the People's Republic of China.

ARCHIVE SNAPSHOT

Approximate Size

640,000 pages

Source

CO 129 War and Colonial Department and Colonial Office: Hong Kong, Original Correspondence, held at the National Archives, UK.

Language

Majority in English, with some Chinese

SUBJECTS SUPPORTED

- The history of Hong Kong
- The history of modern China
- Anglo-Chinese relations
- British imperial history and colonialism in Asia
- Politics and international relations

FEATURING GALE'S HAND-WRITTEN TEXT RECOGNITION

Gale's HTR allows handwritten documents to be full-text searchable, just as Optical Character Recognition (OCR) allows printed books, newspapers, and other works to be searched. This is revolutionary.

The hand-written material included in China and the Modern World: Hong Kong, Britain and China all have HTR applied, enabling unexpected discoveries not possible from traditional finding aids. This technology makes the documents in this collection more accessible to those without paleography skills and enables powerful inclusion in digital humanities/scholarship projects.

FEATURES AND TOOLS

Textual Analysis Tools

Identify and visualise patterns, trends, and relationships to explore content in new ways.

Stand-alone or Cross-search Capabilities

Use the archive on its own or cross-search with other Gale primary source collections to make connections that were not possible previously.

Browse Manuscripts

Browse through each part of the collection as well as search the metadata.

Essays & Resources

Access scholarly essays from leading academics to guide and supplement your research.

Google and Microsoft Integration

Sign in with a Google or Microsoft account and seamlessly save material to Google Drive or OneDrive

ADVISORY BOARD

Professor John Carroll, Department of History, University of Hong Kong

Dr Chi-Kwan Mark, Senior Lecturer in International History, Department of History, Royal Holloway University of London

LEARN MORE

For more information, or to request a trial, please visit gale.com/hongkong

