Have you thought about digital resources for this topic?

Gale Primary Sources
Start at the source.

American Amateur Newspapers
from the American Antiquarian Society

Number of articles
Over 147,000
An extensive collection of amateur publications that were written, edited, and published primarily by young people (aged 12-20), with the majority published during the second half of the 19th century. This archive provides compelling insights into the ways teenagers and young adults viewed their hometowns, their country, and the world around them in the 19th century.

For more information on this archive, visit gale.com/searchamateurnewspapers

@GaleEMEA