Enabling exploration of the political, social, and cultural history of Native Peoples from the seventeenth century well into the twentieth century, Indigenous Peoples: North America illustrates the fabric of North American history with unprecedented depth and breadth.

The value that Gale brings with the inclusion of so many diverse manuscript and book collections is absolutely unparalleled. We've sourced content from both American and Canadian Institutions and have received direct-from-source permission to digitize newspapers from various tribes and Indian-related organizations. The collection also features Indigenous language materials, including dictionaries, Bibles, and primers.

Indigenous Peoples: North America fortifies more general secondary historical resources by providing an opportunity for students to “dig into the past,” and discover the background of the ideas and cultures that have defined indigenous societies, tribal organization, and Indian-White relations.

Advisory Board

Indigenous Peoples: North America has been crafted with the expert guidance of an international advisory board in order to ensure the program fulfills the needs of students, professors, and researchers.

The Indigenous Peoples: North America archive is curated by Dr. Daniel Mandell and Dr. Roger L. Nichols. Dr. Mandell is a professor of History at Truman State University, specializing in Native American history and the history of law. Dr. Nichols is an emeritus professor of History and an affiliate professor of American Indian Studies at the University of Arizona.
