The Times Educational Supplement Historical Archive, 1910–2000

For the first time, students and scholars can digitally study any twentieth-century issue of The Times Educational Supplement, one of the most well-regarded primary and secondary education news sources. Founded in 1910 as a part of the Times of London, the TES became independent at the onset of World War I and soon established itself as the leading publication on public education and pedagogical practice, not only in the United Kingdom but worldwide.

The Times Educational Supplement Historical Archive provides a unique teaching and learning resource for students to explore the world’s oldest continuous educational publication. Featuring more than 4,300 issues, researchers will find ample material in many fields across the humanities and social sciences, including education, social history, women’s studies, public health, literature and the arts.
