The Cold War: Ended, Ending or Pausing a Surreal Struggle Fed by Mutual Fear

By Saul Pelt, AP Special Correspondent

There have been longer wars (not many) and bloodier wars (many) and wars that made more sense (some). But in the history of nations, I can't think of one more strange and more frightening than the Cold War now ended, ending or pausing. For nearly half a century, nearly a fifth of the life of the American republic, two giants have confronted each other, a world they held in thrall with their power and enmity. One feels it stunted everybody's growth. Revolutions, often wars, coups, national development were not allowed to occur naturally in the spontaneity of history without the Cold War imposed on them. It cost the United States more than two world wars combined and left us short of good schools, hospitals, roads, clean air. It cost the Soviet Union (officially) its food on the table and places to live. We still don't know precisely when it started or how we will know when it ends. Other wars had shape. Not this one. This didn't start with a shot heard around the world. It is not ending with a cease-fire, prisoners exchanged and a peace treaty signed. It is ending or pausing.

THE COLD WAR: ENDED, ENDING OR PAUSING A Surreal Struggle Fed by Mutual Fear By SAUL PETT AP Special Correspondent There have been longer wars (not many) and bloodier wars (many) and wars that made more sense (some). But in the history of nations, I can’t think of one more strange and more frightening than the Cold War now ended, ending or pausing. For nearly half a century, nearly a fifth of the life of the American republic, two giants have terrorized each other astride a world they held in thrall with their power and enmity. One feels it stunted everybody’s growth. Revolutions, other wars, coups, national development were not allowed to occur naturally in the spontaneity of history without the Cold War imposed on them. It cost the United States more than two world wars combined and left us short of good schools, hospitals, roads, clean air. It cost the Soviet Union mightily in food on the table and places to live. We still don’t know precisely when it started or how we will know when it ends. Other wars had shape. Not this one.

This didn’t start with a shot heard around the world. It is not ending with a cease-fire, prisoners exchanged and a peace treaty signed clearly showing the winners and the losers.

In the Cold War, the antagonists have yet to agree on a treaty to end the hot war in Europe in which they were allies. How soon can we expect them to end a war in which they are enemies?

We can’t know where we are going or when we will be there but, it seems to me, the current turn in the road is a good place to find out where we have been, which is the subject of my AP Newsfeatures report for Sunday, Aug. 20. It’s like nowhere we have been before.
